

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An infant positioning system and method for positioning an infant during sleep. The infant positioning system includes an infant support device and a headgear. The infant support device is configured for receiving the infant, and selectively changing the position of the infant each night. The headgear is configured to fit about the head of the infant, dispersing the pressure a sleeping surface places on the head of the infant.

6203